I've had the most fruitful journey at Podar World College so far. I have developed creative and innovative adroitness, and over the years, I gained comprehensive knowledge under industries that gave me clarification about various modules and their structure.

As an ambivert who leans more to being in my nutshell, during year 1, Podar offered me substantial opportunities to participate in events where I was able to expand my creative thought and become more confident.

Having said that, the BABM Enterprise course in Year 3 taught me the in-depth knowledge that can be applied to my business by taking risks and becoming a visionary. With my interest in fashion and art, I have been able to look at unconventional methods in practising my thought process across the platform. All of this is creditable to the University Of Wolverhampton that has offered us to inflate our speciality in this stream.

The crowning moment about this module is the amount of exposure to the business world I have had by learning my key skills of being an entrepreneur. Having said that, I was able to start a small project called the SaddleSisters that empowers people in sharing knowledge about the Equestrian World and create a venture out of the same through our social media platform. With that being said, my level of confidence to do so arose from methods of the most understanding entrepreneurial elements of being a passionate worker.
